DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kanazashi, US. Pat. No. 7,148,826.

3. Claims 1, 6-10, Kanazashi teaches a device [device 1 of Fig. 5] for exchanging data signals between a first clock domain [internal clock, see Fig. 6A] and a second clock domain [external clock, see Fig. 6A], characterized in that the device comprises a serial memory element [Shift register 14 of Fig. 5] in which, successive data elements are shifted in order, from one memory location to a next successive memory location [see shift register 14 of Fig. 5], and a parallel memory element coupled to the serial memory element the serial memory element [see Fig. 5] comprising at least one memory location more for the data signals than the parallel memory element [see Fig. 5 and related discussion].

4. Claim 2, Kanazashi teaches the serial memory element is arranged for writing the data signals and the parallel memory element is arranged for reading out the data signals [see Fig. 5 and related discussion].

5. Claim 3, Kanazashi teaches a first control signal for writing the data signals in the serial memory element can be derived from a first clock signal which is arranged for synchronizing the data signals in the first clock domain, and in that a second control signal for reading the data signals from the parallel memory element can be derived from a second clock signal which is arranged for synchronizing the data signals in the second clock domain [see Figs. 5-7 and related discussion].

6. Claims 4-5, Kanazashi teaches the serial memory element is arranged for reading out the data signals and in that the parallel memory element is arranged for writing the data signals [see Fig. 5 and related discussion].

Response to Arguments

7. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-10 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

8. Applicant's amendment (on June 21, 2007) necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.

Art Unit: 2116
